History in the Heart of the Cotswolds

The main building was built in 1693 and originally known as the Guild House

Dating back over 300 years the Bantam has a long and interesting history. The main house was built in 1693 in the time of the Stuarts, William III and Mary II; it was then known as the Guild House, a meeting place for the town goers of Chipping Campden. Though the oldest part of the site & out building is reputed to date back to circa 1500, little is known about the place during the preceding 200 years; by the early 1900s it had become Grandfather Izod's Dairy. We have traced some old photographs of the Bantam & site and these can be seen below.

In 1919 the building became a butcher's shop run by Thomas William Hopkins, a beef and pork butcher. It continued to trade as a butcher's until the Second World War. The old butcher's rail can still be seen to this very day attached to the ceiling in the Tea Rooms.

Establishment of the Tea Rooms & the Bantam Babes

In 1947 the Stansfield family arrived setting up an antique shop on the premises. By the end of 1949 the first eatery had been established. The Bantam Tea Rooms founded its name from 'The Golden Cockerel', a hotel sitting directly opposite on the High Street - this was pivotal in establishing the early Bantam Tea Rooms, hence the cockerel being at the heart of our logo and prominent in our sign outside. In the 1960s the Bantam, led by the formidable Miss Betty Brock and her team of waitresses, developed an enviable reputation with her team becoming known across the Cotswolds as the 'Bantam Babes'.

Now this family run business has passed hands to the 'Taylor family' and is run by Carolyn and her close team. We look forward to continuing the tradition of the Bantam, offering delightful accommodation, excellent freshly prepared food and delicious homemade cakes and scones.

“We welcome you warmly and hope you enjoy your visit to the Bantam”
Carolyn
